FLOOD PREVENTION IN BRITAIN

"Catchment" Boards
To Be Formed

WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED IN MANY AREAS

London, last night.
The Commissioner for special areas in the United Kingdom has begun a campaign to promote the formation of "catchment" boards for the prevention of flooding.
A circular has been sent out to the local authorities in south Wales, Durham, and west Cumberland drawing attention to the special 60 per cent. grant which the Government is prepared to give to such schemes in distressed areas, with the dual object to promote employment and to improve land drainage.

SHORT-LIVED TRIUMPH OF COMMUNISTS

Recapture Of Tsunyi
By Nanking Troops

3,000 REDS CASUALTIES
REPORTED

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Canton, Yesterday.

Effecting a joint drive against the Communists, the central and provincial troops in Kweichow recaptured Tsunyi on March 4. The drive was undertaken mostly by Nanking troops under the command of Generals Hsieh Yeh and Wu Chihwei, former Cantonese officers in Kwangtung.
The enemy lost about 3,000 men, while the casualties of the Government troops were about 1,000. About 1,700 Reds were captured with their rifles and machine guns. As a result of their defeat, the Red outlaws are moving eastward with Western Hunan as their objective.

200 Killed In Fierce
Battles

Canton, Yesterday.
The troops of the Kwangtung First Army Corps and the fourth Independent Division, who are employed in searching for Communist remnants in south Kiangsi, wiped out a number of outlaws during the past few days.
A report received here to-day from General Yu Han-mow, Commander of the first Army Corps, states that a regiment of his troops

Canton, Yesterday.
As a result of the violent attack launched by the Kweichow troops in conjunction with the Central forces against the Reds who were attempting to cross the Wu-kong River, Tsunyi was recovered on March 4. The marauders suffered heavy casualties. The main strength of the first, third and fifth bogus armies is reported to have been broken.

MOBILISATION DENIED

Athens, Yesterday.

General Kondylis, the Minister of War, has issued a communique which states that snow and floods are preventing the Government troops from crossing the River Strymon.
Twenty Government aeroplanes bombed a concentration of rebel troops at Serres, also the railway station and reconnoitred the plain of Serres, the greater part of which is flooded.
The Premier, M. P. Tsaldaris, in an interview, admitted that the bad weather was holding up the advance of the Government troops, but opined that the rebels might disperse of their own accord.

CONFLICTING REPORTS.
Ex-President Venizelos, accepted leader of the rebels, has been seriously wounded and is being taken to Alexandria, according to a wireless message reported to have been intercepted by a Yugoslav steamer in the gulf of Volo.—Reuter.

MISSIONARIES IN HANDS OF REDS

BOSSHARDT AND HAYMAN
SEEN ALIVE

Peiping, Yesterday.
Advices from Changsha indicate that the report that the missionaries Boshardt and Hayman were seen alive and well at Tsunyi in west Hunan on February 15 is more likely to be true than the suspicion that the bodies of the two foreigners alleged to have been seen there were theirs.
It is now believed that the bodies reported to have been seen at Tsunyi are those of two French priests captured a long time ago, either in Kiangsi or Kwangsi, by the Communists.—Reuter.

No lives were lost, but Captain Roussel and three of her crew of 17 narrowly escaped.
The Kiangshun suffered severely below the waterline.—Reuter.

MANCHUKUO ISSUE MAY BE
"COLD-STORAGED"

Singapore, Yesterday.
Reuter reports that Mr. C. T. Wang, on his arrival from Manila to-day, declared that the Manchukuo issue could be put into cold storage temporarily. China, he said, desired the friendship of her close and powerful neighbour; the rapprochement was dependent, however, on what the terms might be.
If China had a respite from further aggression the country's outlook was bright; otherwise there was no telling what might happen.—Reuter.

London, Yesterday.

The command of the sea is the key of the Venizelist Revolt.
The fog of war envelops the Balkans, rumours and denials are flowing out from all the capitals and the paucity of reliable news is rendering the summing up of the situation very difficult.
The fact that the revolt has lasted already for a week demonstrates that it must be taken as far more serious than the Athens disclaimers indicated.
The Venizelists have strong strategic headquarters in Crete, whence, by means of the rebel navy, they are able to rally supporters in all the islands and mainland ports.

SERRES BOMBED
A Salonika communique says that hostilities are still delayed in Macedonia owing to the bad weather, but Government aeroplanes have bombed the barracks and railway station at Serres.
It denies the report that General Ghalstrass, with a division stationed at Comotini, in Thrace, has joined the insurgents.
Meanwhile the rebels are believed to be well supplied with money and munitions.

In 1934 the L.N.E.R. carried over 6,000,000 more passengers than in 1933 and 10,000,000 more than in 1932. The passenger receipts had also risen by £360,000 over last year's figure.—British Wireless Service.

Canton, Yesterday.
The International Women's Day was celebrated to-day at the Provincial Mass Education Institute by more than 1,000 of the fair sex.

NO INFORMATION CONCERNING
JAPANESE-OWNED LAND

Singapore, Yesterday.

Further extensions of military establishments are officially announced.
Work for the accommodation of a second infantry battalion in the Alexandra area begins this year, while developments in the direction of Changi are envisaged before the close of the financial year 1935-36. Sixteen barracks, housing approximately 1,400 men, mostly gunners, are already built.
No information is available as regards the further acquisition of 700 acres of isolated estate land at Johore. This land, which was Japanese owned, overlooks the eastern entrance to the Naval Base.—Reuter.

JAPANESE LOAN TO BRAZIL

Categorically Denied
In Tokyo

Tokyo, Yesterday.
The press report that Japan would grant a loan of $100,000,000 to Brazil to enable her to reorganise her merchant marine is categorically denied by the Japanese economic mission which leaves for Brazil on April 8 and by the Foreign Office.
The cotton representative of the Mission stated that a loan might be possible if Brazil would pay for it in raw cotton, but emphasised that such a plan had never been mooted.—Reuter.

CHINESE ACTRESS PASSES

Shanghai, Yesterday.
Miss Juan Ling-yu, one of China's premier screen actresses, was to-day found dying beside three bottles of sleeping tablets. She was taken to hospital, where she succumbed.
Miss Juan Ling-yu was the defendant in an adultery case.—Reuter.

PARIS DUEL BARRISTERS MEET AT DAWN WITH SABRES

MAITRE KANOU
WOUNDED

Paris, Yesterday.
A spirited duel was fought in a snow-storm on the Parc des Princes football ground at the grey and shivery dawn to-day between two famous barristers, Maitres Merlat and Kanoui, who, disdaining forensic weapons, savagely attacked each other with sabres under the expert direction of Armand Massard, the Olympic champion fencer.
The cause of the quarrel is described vaguely as a professional and political incident, but the details are unknown.
After several skillful passages, Maitre Merlat wounded Maitre Kanoui twice slightly in the right arm and then swiftly lunged, inflicting a more serious cut on the neck.
The blood gushed out on the trodden snow, and M. Massard thereupon stopped the fight. Doctors then rushed in and staunch Maitre Kanoui's wounds and carried him off. The opponents are still unreconciled.—Reuter.

STRIKE OUTRAGE IN HAVANA

Police Chief Killed By

Havana, Yesterday.
Senor Cardenas, the Chief of Police, was killed by the explosion of a bomb he was removing from a church to-day.
The strike situation is worsening. The newspapers have refused to publish under the existing censorship and their staffs have come out, in sympathy with other workers.
Most of the tramwaymen and some of the busmen have joined the strikers.—Reuter.

Waterbury, Connecticut, Yesterday.
A package addressed to Senator Huey Long of Louisiana containing a bomb attached to a ticking alarm-clock was intercepted here last night.—Reuter.
Senator Huey Long, the "Dictator of Louisiana," was recently the subject of scathing attacks, both in the Senate, by Senator Robinson, the Democrat leader, and outside, by General Hugh S. Johnson, late National Recovery Administrator, in a broadcast.

SHORT STORY

I T By Ralph Stock

WHEN they chose Grieve to relieve Strickland at Keba, there were those who sympathised. Grieve was not the sort to look for sympathy, and told them so, but he was curious enough to want to know why they troubled, and their reasons were hardly exhaustive.

"Rotten hole!" grunted Bagnall, of the Police, and miscued in off the red.

"Heard things about Keba," said Nation, of the Lands Department. "Oh, nothing in particular; usual rumours. Have a drink?"

"Um—" Godsall, of the "Survivors," grinned his usual slow grin. "Well, come back, that's all."

At last Grieve had something to take hold of.

"You mean Bennett didn't?" he queried.

Godsall nodded and grinned. "Oh, if that's all—" And Grieve told him what he thought of a man who balks at an appointment because his predecessors happened to die in harness.

Godsall grinned.

Even when the Andi Malua had charged the prescribed number of mudbanks and landed him on a mosquito-infested marsh called Niatu, Grieve was in no way impressed. He had suffered marshes—and mosquitoes—and, to tell the truth, he was rather taken with the look of things. There was something to be done here.

Keba was inland; none of your "palm-fringed coral beaches" about Keba; and the road—so called—quaked rhythmically under them as they walked. One of the boys, with Grieve's tin trunk on his head, fell through, and there was no sign of his finding bottom before he grabbed a tree-root.

Half a day brought them to Keba and Grieve began—only began—to see what Bagnall and the others had meant; perhaps sixty miserable-looking grass huts, and perched on the only rising ground in sight the "Resident's" bungalow, its iron roof glinting in the yellow glare. For the rest—mud, mud, and straggling mangrove as far as the eye could reach.

Strickland met Grieve on the veranda steps. His eyes were hollow and black-rimmed, and his muscles twitched. Then Grieve noticed the whisky tumbler on a wicker table at the end of the veranda—and he thought he understood.

"Oh, so they've sent you," was Strickland's greeting, delivered in a harsh, colourless voice.

"Yes," Grieve replied briskly, "and I should think it's about time. Have you packed?"

"No, not yet," Strickland fell back into a wicker chair and nodded towards the tumbler. "Help yourself."

While the boys carried the trunks into the bungalow, Grieve stood at the veranda railing looking out over Keba, and thought his own particular thoughts.

"They're running up a new hotel in Suva," he said presently. "By the look of things it'll be a real hotel when it's finished."

"Really?" said Strickland.

"And the cricket field's being enlarged. They'll have room for four more tennis courts in the corner. Tennis is coming on."

Strickland grunted and stirred in his chair. Grieve persisted.

"Are you going home this leave?"

"m—ah—I don't know—yet."

Strickland shot him a sidelong glance that might have conveyed anything.

"I should," Grieve continued doggedly. "We're beginning to wake up, by the look of the illustrated electric trams on Embankment—ha, ha!"

The laugh, that Grieve felt to be idiotic fell as flat as the mud about them. Strickland was frankly bored by the first man he had seen for nearly a year. It was not flattering.

This constituted the antepandrial amenities.

After dinner they came out on to the veranda, and talked business to an accompaniment of the wildest noises that had ever fallen on Grieve's ears. There were crabs—myriads of them—scuttling and crackling over the mud and every now and then something fell with a sither and a plop out under the moonlit mist that stood on the swamp like a solid grey wall.

Strickland seemed to have come to life.

"They're willing enough," he was saying. "There's nothing of the mission about the Keba boys, but it's a sight. You know that road you came up—not bad, was it?—well, that took us three months—"

"Does this row go on every night?" Grieve interrupted suddenly.

Grieve interrupted suddenly. Strickland looked round at him.

"What row?"

"Good lord, man! Do you mean to say you can't hear—that?"

Something was making a noise like a suction pump at their very feet. The swamp seemed to be licking its lips at them.

"Oh, that?" Strickland cackled faintly.

"That's the way it talks." He always referred to the mud as "it."

"It has airpockets or something, and lumps give way and slide down to the level. I've often watched it—it's rather fascinating. But that road, we must take it through to the North-east Coast—"

"We?" exclaimed Grieve in spite of himself. "Whom do you mean by 'we'?"

Again Strickland cackled.

"Figure of speech," he explained. "Of course, I mean you. I'm going on leave—of course."

"I should hope so," commented Grieve.

"It's a better landing than Niatu, and we—I mean, you—must get a decent outlet."

"Outlet for what?"

"Well, we've drained nearly a hundred acres, and planted maize and bananas. They seem to be doing all right."

Grieve hoisted himself out of his chair and stood, cigar in hand, looking out into the mist.

"It beats me," he said, "why they want to come and live in a hole like this, when there's the rest of the group open to them."

Strickland leant forward almost eagerly.

"Ah, that's the mistake most people would make. They didn't 'come and live here,' as you call it; they grow here—they're part of it—it's their country."

"Well, I don't admire their taste in countries, that's all; especially when an innocent outsider has to come and live with them."

Strickland's eye blazed, but the other's back was turned.

"You might as well say don't admire the Laplanders—or—or—the Dutch; they're fighting the sea; why don't they emigrate to California? They fought lava—we're fighting mud"—Strickland relaxed into his chair—and it's rather fascinating."

Grieve shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, I hope I shall and it so."

"I hope so, too," said Strickland. "That hundred acres could be made into a thousand if it was worked properly."

"You mean I don't know how to work it properly?"

"Of course not; you don't know Keba—yet. I'll show you tomorrow."

"And lose a day of your leave?" Strickland looked up at Grieve with a hint of defiance.

"Yes," he said, "and lose a day of my leave."

"We tried piles here," said Strickland, as they stood on the Niatu road the next morning, watching fifty mud-beamed islanders working a home-made dredge. "But it was no use; they sank out of sight. Then I planted palms, hoping they would hold things back a bit, but one after another they toppled in—I could hear them at night."

He moved further along the road with a quick, nervous stride that Grieve found hard to keep pace with.

"Here's the beginning of the drained land," Strickland rambled on. "You see what I mean; the whole thing can be extended north-east. There's a rise—it isn't much, but it's a rise—and if that ditch—"

Grieve listened intently. There was no doubt about it; the man was working wonders. But to Grieve the chief miracle was the enthusiasm he seemed to have instilled into the "labour." Enthusiasm in a South Sea nigger!

"What do you do with yourself in your spare time?" Grieve asked when they had returned to the veranda.

Strickland turned with his blank stare.

"Spare time?" he said. "There isn't any—that is, if you want to keep that hundred acres, let alone increase it. It's always sitting."

FIRST TOP-COATS FOR EARLY SPRING

FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT

AMONG the first top-coats for early spring one sees many of belted variety in wool suitings with attractive collars of fur. They are smart both for town and travel, and quite distinctive from the rough tweeds and leathers for hard country wear.

Very smart coats and skirts again show the plain coat worn with a striped or checked skirt. The connecting link is a collar or scarf of the same fabric on the coat, and the skirts are out to give a still slimmer and tighter effect, but the discerning eye can detect a hidden pleat or inverted fold, which gives freedom of movement.

CAPES AND SPRING TOP-COATS

ASTRAKHAN LOOK

SOMETIMES capes are attached to top-coats for spring, also waistcoated models with capes. These can be very smart in a neutral check with a waistcoat of plain suiting. Many new weaves in dark wool coats are worn with soft leather belts. Again, occasionally the skirt part is very slightly gored, but many are left straight and slim.

A collar and cuffs of grey astrakhan look well on the darkest navy leather, or a very dark brown cloth with a stitched petersham belt and chromium buckle. The same model was trimmed all down the front with brown squirrel, complete with folded collar and cuffs of the same.

NOVEL DAY-TIME DRESSES

SEMI-FORMAL VEIN

A NOVELTY for day-time dresses is the belt buckle representing a motif in card suits. The motifs are big and chiefly fashioned from silver or gold kid. An attractive silver-grey afternoon gown was seen trimmed with a broad scarlet leather belt which fastened with a silver kid buckle representing a club motif.

Jacket suits in semi-formal vein frequently show scalloped edging. Skirt edges, collar lines, and even cuffs, are finished in curved scallops, little points or squares.

Narrow piping is a rival to these decorative edgings, and it is to be seen in white or pastels on dark suits and dresses.

RENOVATIONS

Give Your Dress The Right Look Of Life

CLOTHES are as temperamental as faces. A new twist to the way you set your hair, a new lipstick, a touch of rouge if you haven't used any before—and somehow eyes turn your way. Some clothes, although still good, get that uninteresting, "I don't quite know what is the matter with me" look. They are tired and want to have a new "make-up" to give them some interest in life.

What's to be done? Well, not too much. Never spend a lot of money and a lot of work on a renovation—you will be disappointed if you do. It is so much wiser to look for small additions, some fresh colour note, a scarf, a few buttons or a new collar to give your dress the right look of life—and fashion.

TO AVOID WATER MARKS

If fabric is ironed when damp, it must be taken to see that it is evenly damp. Roll in a towel after passing through the wringer, but do not allow to dry thoroughly. Dried articles which are sprinkled afterwards inevitably become patchy.

Fashions Come Out At The Hunt Balls

(By The Hon. Mrs. C. W. FORESTER)

London.

PICTURESQUE vogues are being given a good showing at the Hunt Balls. The hunting pink worn by men there in preference to black evening clothes is helpful in providing an attractive setting for evening dresses. The mellow atmosphere of an old country house is a perfect background for picturesque modes.

The bustle bow of the 'Sixties is never entirely out of the ball-room picture. Treated skilfully, in taffeta or tulle, the huge bow just below the waist, and the latest butterfly effects across the back or tied on the shoulder, and floating downwards, are all extremely attractive.

An apple-green taffeta tightly-draped skirt had a stiff black tulle bow, suggesting a sort of bustle below the waist; shirred ruffles of the same tulle adorned the plain corse and ran up the apron-front drapery. Black gloves and shoes looked smart.

Another taffeta ball-gown in a blue and white narrow stripe had a short Victorian bodice and very full skirt, both lavishly trimmed with tiny pinked-out ruffles. This was a very striking suggestion for a piquant dark girl. A fair girl in the same party chose a corn-coloured satin, cut on a trained streamline, with a cluster of deep red carnations placed exactly in the centre of the corsage.

Her train was held up when dancing, and revealed a cream lace petticoat, caught with gold embroidery. I was struck by those entirely opposite types of English girls. Their coiffures and accessories all spot perfect; no one could pass them over in a crowd. Their hostess, with lovely white hair, was equally imposing in parma-violet crepe, with a pale pink velvet capelet, trimmed purple ostrich.

Another colour combination that struck me as very successful in a large assembly was pale yellow and pink, with accessories in gold. Pale pink and grey, too, are very becoming, especially with touches of silver.

INITIALED COLLAR FOR THE SPRING

THE Initialed collar will be shown at the spring dress shows. The initials appear on the neckband, which is of the same novelty woollen fabric as the collar that it holds in place.

Similar initials are also shown on the pigskin bag, which matches the wide belt.

ROMANTIC GOWNS

EVENING gowns will definitely be more romantic this spring. The straight princess lines of last season, so narrow that we had to have slit sides or fronts to allow room enough for walking, have given place to the most voluminous hems seen since Georgian days.

Working The Pounds Off

STAND on one leg and hold the other on to the back of a chair at about waist level. Then twist the trunk to the right and bend down as though to put your left ear on your knee, keeping the leg as straight as possible. You won't be able to manage it at first, but your waist and hips will benefit by your efforts. Try four times, then change legs.

Lumps come off backs and shoulders like magic if you do this exercise. Make your back as round as possible, keeping the arms crossed, but relaxed, in front. Then roll back and forth from the waist without relaxing shoulders and back. Do this for five minutes a day.

Squeeze off that roll round your waist like this. Coat the skin with almond oil, take handfuls of flesh and squeeze hard. Then let it slip through your hands. Take another handful and carry on.

NAVY BLUE AND ROSE PINK

AN interesting innovation in furnishing colours is the alliance of navy blue and rose-leaf pink. This is used in pottery, cushions and in upholstery fabrics—a break-away from the usual pale greens and blues so often the vogue in planning colours for spring home decoration schemes.

QUICK ALTERATION

If an otherwise wearable dress or blouse is too narrow across the front, a quick remedy is to cut a slit from the neckline down as far as the need for enlargement demands.

EUKUTOL

THE BIOLOGICAL SKIN TONIC

BEAUTY nowadays is not just an accidental gift of nature; it can be attained also by well thought-out and systematic care of the body, that most exquisite and wonderful organisation which has come to us from the Divine hand. And although beauty is more than skin-deep, a dazzling skin is indispensable to beauty. A few minutes devoted daily to the care of your skin will keep you young and supple, healthy and attractive. "Beauty and health are the chief sources of happiness," says Beaconsfield.

But how, you ask, can I appropriate beauty? Our medical, chemical and cosmetic experts have solved the question for you, Madam.

The preparations forming the foundation for the Eukutol System are the outcome of years of scientific labour, of investigations into the natural requirements of the skin, into the active elements and nutrients needed by the skin for the unremitting renewal of its beauty. The Eukutol System is explained in small booklet and when you have read it you will join the already vast ranks of Eukutol adherents. You will have every reason to be grateful for the results of the System. Make a beginning this very evening, with a free sample from all dispensaries and stores.

ENGLAND HOCKEY TRIAL TO-DAY

Two Strong Sides To Clash

The first England Hockey trial takes place at 10.30 a.m. to-day on the East Lanes' Shamshuipe military ground.

The teams are fairly well balanced and should give the selectors plenty of food for thought.

The teams are:—
Colours:—Hollingsworth (Lincs), Metcalfe (H.K.S.R.A.), E. V. Reed (Club), Farmer (Y.M.C.A.), W. A. Reed (Club), Neighbour (E. Lanes), S. Fowler (Y.M.C.A.), Parker (Police), Reeks (Lincs), Wass (Police), and Taylor (Lincs).

Whites:—Jessop (Police), A. N. Oiler (Lincs), Cox (E. Lanes), Tate (Police), Gough (Police), T. A. Baker (Y.M.C.A.), May (Signals), Garthwaite (H.K.S.R.A.), Senior (A.E.G.), Divott (Club), and Toynce (Lincs).

FUSILIERS LOSE SEVENS FINAL REINFORCED CLUB TEAM WIN

THE Club caused a sensation yesterday when they won the Barney Stone Seven-A-Side Rugby Shield for the third time, defeating the Fusilier "A" team by a goal and a try (8 points to a goal (5 points) in their Final Round encounter on the Hong Kong Football Club ground before a fairly large gathering of spectators.

INTERPORT HOCKEY POSSIBILITY OF UNOFFICIAL ENCOUNTER

Shanghai Germans Offer To Come South

SUGGESTION WELL RECEIVED

There is a distinct possibility that an unofficial hockey Interport between the Colony and Shanghai will take place towards the end of the current month, and everything now depends upon the result of a special Council meeting of the Hong Kong Hockey Association, which has been called for tomorrow at 5.30 p.m. at the St. Andrew's Church Hall.

The Shanghai German Hockey Club, winners of the Shanghai League for the past two seasons, have written asking the Hong Kong Hockey Association, if it would be possible for them to visit the Colony towards the end of the month to play a series of games against the Colony and selected teams.

Several leading officials of the Hong Kong Hockey Association were immediately informed of the letter, and all expressed the opinion that there should be no delay in staging the Interport.

This will probably be the forerunner of official Interports between the Colony and Shanghai.

DROP POINTS BY ODD GOAL CHINESE OUTPLAYED IN OPENING HALF

THE Kowloon ground was filled to overflowing yesterday, spectators being lined right to the touch-lines (many hundreds outside failed to gain admission), to witness the return First Division encounter between the Recreio and South China "A," in which the Chinese were triumphant by the odd goal in three.

The game did not produce the good football expected, too much attention being paid to "getting the man" instead of the ball, and had displays of temper on both sides ruined what should have been an entertaining match.

The Recreio should have made the issue secure in the first 10 minutes. First Bertie Gosano, and then Delgado, missed open goals, and the latter threw away yet a third priceless chance a minute later by erratic shooting.

Gosano played a great game in the first half, and was given support by Delgado and Gomes, who, with Alves, formed a very dangerous left-wing, and the South China defence were badly rattled in the opening exchanges.

D'Aquino, brought in, in place of the injured Castillo, gave a good account of himself, and fitted in well in a fast and combined set of forwards. Boltrao proved invaluable in the pivotal berth, and by prompt tackling and good positional play, frustrated Fung King-cheong and Tam on almost every occasion. His passing was masterly, and in this phase, Marques and Silva-Netto were fully up to his standard, the half-back trio simply overwhelming the forwards with accurate passes during the opening period.

SOUTH CHINA "B" TEAM LUCKY TO TAKE POINT

Kowloon Lead Until Three Minutes Before Final Whistle

G. WHITE CAUSES ANXIETY

South China "B" were very fortunate to share the points in their First Division encounter with Kowloon at Caroline Hill yesterday. The Mainlanders led by the only goal of the match until three minutes from time when Tsang King Ki obtained the equaliser.

Kowloon were in the limelight from the opening minute, V. White shooting just wide of the post. Awarded a free kick just outside the area, Bliss made a good attempt, but Tong Kwan breasted the ball down and cleared well up field.

After a period of pressure by the Chinese, Eastman sent over a very nice centre which G. White headed past the upright. Another excellent attempt by G. White came to naught when he hit the crossbar with a terrific shot from 20 yards out. Just before half time G. White was fouled right on the area border line—another inch or so and he would have been awarded a penalty—and taking a dead central shot he kicked well over the top. Half time arrived with the score sheet blank.

Kowloon Score First

The first goal of the game was scored after 10 minutes play in the second half, Knox making a fine run down the wing before centring for G. White to receive and beat Paul with a great shot which the Chinese custodian did not see.

The Chinese equalised about three minutes from time, TSANG KING KI receiving the ball in front of goal to beat Boyes easily.

South China "B"—Pau Ka-ping; Tong Kwan, Chun Fui-lung, Lee Kem; Lam Tak-po, George Young; Li Sik-yau, Lal Sui-wing, Tsang King-ki, Chek Shek-kam and Chan Tak-hon.

Kowloon—Boyes; Everest, Willis, Sinclair, Mills, Barlow; Eastman, McKeiv, G. White, V. White and Knox.

ARTILLERY LOSE TO LINCOLNS IN ONE-SIDED CLASH

Gunner Forwards Off-Form

HIGGINS AND RIDLEY IN LIMELIGHT

The Lincolns secured a comfortable victory yesterday when they defeated the Artillery by 4 goals to nil in their First Division League encounter.

Within a few minutes Higgins opened the scoring after receiving from Ridley.

Morton was as successful as could be expected in his attempt to hold Ridley, but to look after Higgins was more than he could do.

From this period the Gunners' play deteriorated, and except for some fine solo work by Morton were rarely able to keep the ball out of the danger area.

The Lincolns' second goal came shortly afterwards when Baldry beat Durham with a splendid shot.

EAST LANCS BOW TO NAVY

Three Late Goals Clinch The Issue

Despite the fact that there was no score in the first half of play, the Navy beat the East Lanes by three clear goals on the Navy ground yesterday.

The Navy's first goal was an easy one, when, following a skirmish around the soldiers' goals, Banstead scored. Soon after the Navy scored again, a penalty being awarded for alleged handling. Love took the splendid display, being a forceful leader, always in the right place when, following a smart run down the wing, Golding centred for Love to net from close quarters with a grand shot.

Play on the part of the East Lancashire slackened off considerably in the final stages of the encounter, and the Navy launched attacks on the soldiers' goal without receiving many set-backs.

Navy:—Cocker; Rycroft, Cosens; Hughes, MacQuire, Love; Baxter, Banstead, Grey, Constable and Golding. East Lanes:—Oxford; Swain, Ratcliffe, Horner, Lawton, North, Swain, Smith, Gorman, Hardy and Tuloy.

UNIVERSITY SECURE POSTPONEMENT

The second division encounter between the University and South China, which was scheduled to be played at Caroline Hill yesterday, was postponed, the undergraduates having to apply for postponement on account of the game clashing with their Annual Sports Meeting.

INDIAN HOCKEY ELEVEN TESTED

Gurbachan Singh Again Disappoints

H.K.S.R.A. TEAM BEATEN

The probable Indian international hockey eleven were fully tested yesterday when they defeated the 2nd Mountain Battery, Hong Kong Singapore Brigade, by 5 goals to 4 in a game featured by the brilliant defensive tactics by Dulla Singh, the Colony pivot, and his wing halves, Tara Singh and Alaf Din, another Interporter.

The probable eleven played excellent hockey and as a team were very good, in spite of the fact they were playing together for the first time.

MRS. KAYLL SHINES AT HOCKEY

Scores Twice Against Hong Kong Ladies

An experimental "Y" Ladies hockey team yesterday defeated a scratch Hong Kong Ladies' team by four clear goals in a game featured by an excellent display by Mrs. J. F. Kayll, the Colony tennis champion, who scored twice in her debut appearance.

The "Y" Ladies enjoyed most of the play, and the game as a result, became very one-sided, with Miss A. Fowler and Miss Brown, the "Y" left-wing combine, who each scored once, sharing the limelight. Miss E. Thomson was also good, while Miss N. McKenna, was the only opposing player to shine.

FOWLER BROTHERS IN FORM

Y.M.C.A. Beat Hermes

Playing in a friendly hockey match at King's Park yesterday, the Y.M.C.A. defeated H.M.S. Hermes by 4 goals to 1 after leading by three clear goals at the end of the first half.

S. Fowler, playing at centre forward, netted three goals, while F. Fowler scored the fourth for the "Y." and Scattergood, the naval leader, netted their lone point.

The Royal Navy Juniors, and the Royal Army Medical Corps, will meet in a Second Division cricket match at King's Park this afternoon.

GOOD HEALTH

Our general health depends quite considerably on foot ease, and nervous systems can be wrecked by the civilizing 'nag' of shoe discomfort — yet people will tell us that their shoes are quite comfortable — and yet I am certain if they were to try what I consider the perfect fitting shoe for only two days, they would, in nine cases out of ten, be simply unable to wear their old shoes any more.

So says the famous Sir Herbert Barker in his book on "Shoe Comfort."

Call and let us try a pair of Sir Herbert Barker Shoes on — they are entirely different from other Shoes. New Stocks in Black & Brown have just been received at new low prices.

DOGS WITH A JOB IN LIFE Breeds That Britain Cherishes Unique Part Played By Cruft's Show

(By J. WENTWORTH DAY)

ON February 6 there began the greatest cavalcade of dogs in the world. There is nothing else quite like "Cruft's." It is peculiarly British. So is Mr. Charles Cruft. He is a blend, if you like, of the late Mr. Barnum and the present Messrs. Charles B. Cochran and Bertram Mills. For he is a showman first and last. And he is 80 years old.

Observe his white moustache, his ruddy countenance, stocky, broad-built form—put him in imagination into breeches and buckskins and a green whipcord coat and a fox-hat and you have a typical North Country farmer, a yeoman of 500 acres.

Actually he was born in Bloomsbury. He is a Cockney. But his roots are in the soil, his soul is in the country and his heart was given long ago to a dog.

Stocks That Last

His show is a faithful mirror of the national taste and temperament. When I look down the list of entrants for this year's Cruft's I am forced to the conclusion that we are a very stable, homely and reasonable people. There is little room for nonsense-dogs in the pages of this Post Office Directory of the nation's pets. The favourites are like the ratapayers—solid, stolid, sober people. They are old stock of the sort that lasts.

For example, there are more than 60 classes for Cocker Spaniels. And what is more English, homelier, more sentimental and sloppier, more industrious and hard working, more loyal and more sensitive, more obstinate in devotion and more obvious in sincerity—though ungainly and loutish in moments of joy—than the Cocker Spaniel? All of which, you will agree, are essentially English qualities. Perhaps that is why the Cocker is the most popular dog in the present show.

Retrievers

I am glad to see that the Labrador Retriever is coming along. There is something about his broad, intelligent skull, his stocky build, deep chest and straight shoulders which breeds confidence. He is John Bull-turned-into-dog.

Those gay, handsome, dashing, unreliable breeds, charming dillettantes of their kind, the Irish Setter and the Golden Retriever, fill several benches. I like the Irish Setter, red and handsome, with his swayback and that takes you straight to the slopes of a Galway mountain. I like his fine, aristocratic touch, his carriage and his dash of the devil.

As for the Golden Retriever, I tread on thorny ground. I confess that I do not quite like him. He is handsome and lovely, with a limpid eye and a look of the stuffed Adonis. But I cannot help secretly smiling with the old squire who said, when he first tried one, "Dammit, the dog's just like a ginger biscuit—hard in the mouth and breaks up in water."

Gun Dogs

But there are Pointers and Gordon Setters at the show, handsome creatures that belong to the age of muzzle-loaders. And there are Clumbers, those solemn, wise-faced, heavy old spaniels, steady as Time, reliable and plodding, the favourite gun-dogs of the King, the products of a dead and gone Duchess of Newcastle's genius for dog-breeding.

Sussex Spaniels are coming on again. That is a good thing. They are an old and noble breed, with a touch of old days, of September mornings of long ago when "The Master" walked through the apple orchard with his long muzzle-loader under his arm, his gaiters brushing the dew, partridges calling beyond the hedge in the knee-high stubble which the hand-sickle had left.

And when that vision of September shooting days of the eighteenth century leaps to the mind one hears almost the echo of a ghostly whistle to the brace of Sussex Spaniels who tumbled and lumbered in their master's rear. He is very old and very English, and I am glad that Mr. Cruft has brought him back again.

Old English Spirit

And perhaps it is because Mr. Cruft has not only kept alive but fostered and increased this old English spirit that I have talked of here and thought only of the old English dog whom he has brought to Islington.

For who, after all, except a few women, cares much about a Schnauzer Pinscher, a Keeshond or a Tibetan Terrier? They are a snobbery in themselves.

But there are some sorts of fancy dogs from foreign countries deserving of more courtesy and respect than one would normally give to the useless cumberers of South Kensington carpets. There are some who have come here to justify themselves in the old sports and the old ways that have made them famous in their own lands.

The Nobly-Bred Saluki

There is the Saluki; for instance. The Saluki has 1,000 years and more of history behind him. He is as well and highly bred as the Arab horse. And he comes from the same bare deserts of the East which saw the birth of Christian history. The Saluki was the gazelle-hound or gazelle hound of the Arabs when the average man in Britain was hiding from the sabre-toothed tiger in a suit of wool.

There has been no weakening of doggerel since those days. Like the desert Arab himself and his horse the Saluki breed has been maintained pure and noble.

It is to the eternal credit of Miss Amherst, General Lance, the officers of the Saluki Coursing Club and others that this beautiful and graceful hound with the liquid eyes and tasselled ears has not been allowed to degenerate into a mere teatable scyophant, a nuisance on the end of a lead.

The Misused Poodle

There is another dog, quick, intelligent, hardy, loyal and faithful, which for 100 years has been made a public fool. At heart it is one of the gamiest and most intelligent little apartment men in the whole canine world. This unsuspected paragon is the French Poodle.

When I see a miserable nincompoop on four legs, walking along the street, its coat cut into a sort of fantastic forestry scheme, I take pity on it from the bottom of my heart.

And I think of a little poodle I know who lives in a marsh village on the Essex coast. Three mornings a week throughout the shooting season she goes out with her master. No spaniel is better in a hedgerow. No retriever finds dead birds quicker in roots. And on snipe she is a potted marvel.

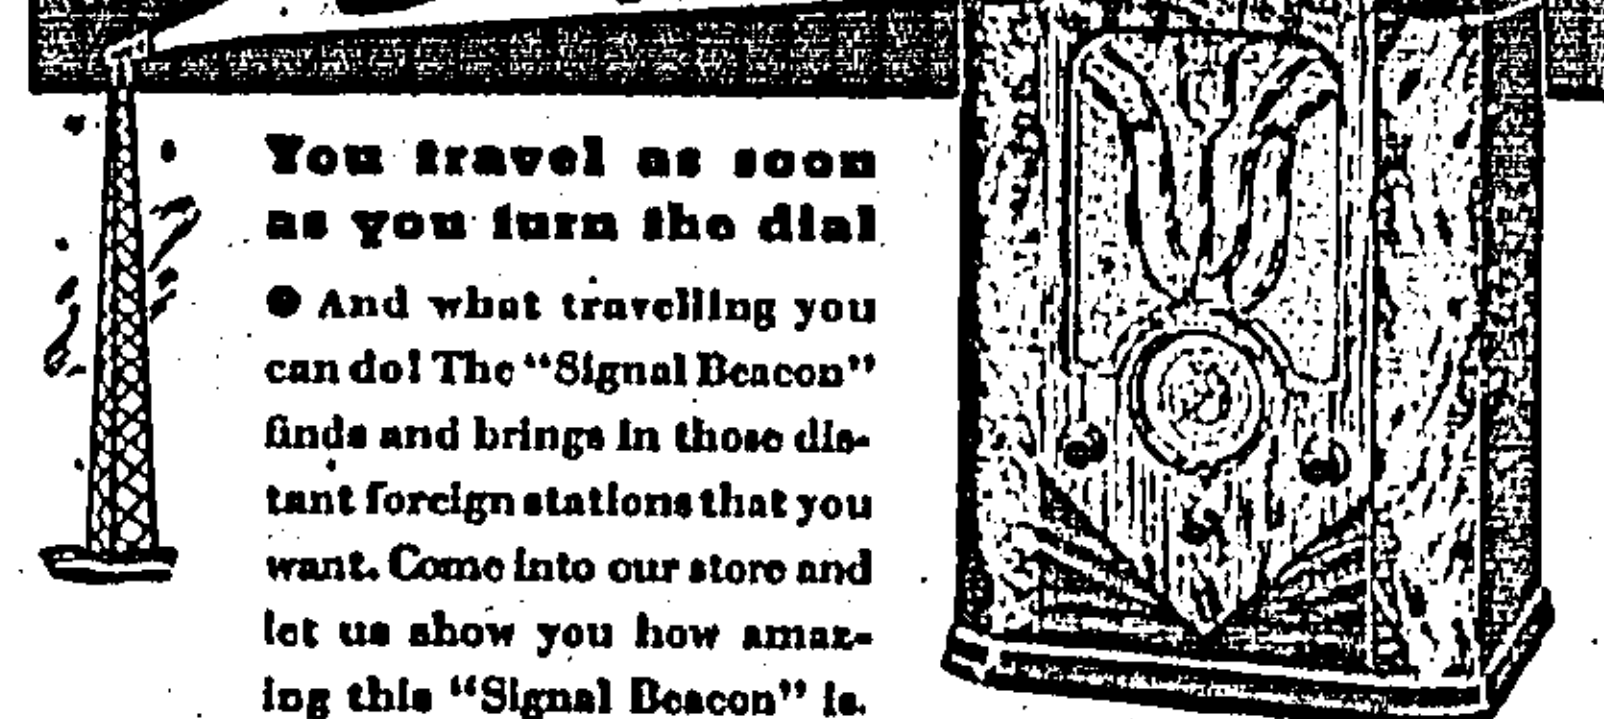

Trudie is probably the only happy poodle I have ever met. For she has been allowed to keep her self-respect. She has a job in life. And that is why I think Cruft's Show succeeds. For it is mostly there for the dogs who have jobs in life.

HORNBY, N.S.W.

Dear Sir,
I just feel that I must write that 'ASPRO' Tablets and tell you how glad I am to have them. It is so true that they break up a COLD and 'FLU'. A while ago I caught a very BAD COLD and 'FLU'. I commenced taking 'ASPRO'. I also took eucalyptus on sugar. I managed to get to a chemist for some medicine. He asked what I had been taking. I told him. He then told me not to take much eucalyptus, but to INHALE as much as I liked. 'But', I said, 'I had it not been for ASPRO you would not be in this shop to-day, but in bed'. He was a great believer in 'ASPRO'. Then two weeks ago I caught another BAD COLD, but by taking 'ASPRO' three times a day, I managed to break the cold and get well.

Yours sincerely,
(Miss) M. FLAVEL

Values And Prices

AMIDST all the hubbub of discussion about money, in which we hear some people crying that it is able to buy too much, (that means that prices are too low for the seller), and others that it will buy too little, (too high for the buyer), we hear very little said about the value of what money can buy in the sense of the preciousness of things to us without any regard to what other people may think or say. Knowing our own minds about what we really want is partly the result of a natural good taste, but mostly the fruit of education; and there is much to be learned about a man's character not only by watching what he buys but by noticing what he values after he has bought it.

It is quite extraordinary what fortunes can be made by men who have the gift of buying well. Sir Hugh Lane, starting with nothing more than a loan and a little credit, came to be able to sell pictures for thousands that he had bought for hundreds of pounds. The latest example of the usefulness of having the courage to back one's own judgment against the rest of the world is one's judgment happens to be good, is the recent generous transfer of a wonderful collection of China and Porcelain to the Kensington Art Gallery by Mr. Eumorfopoulos, who passed through Hong Kong the other day for the purpose of selecting from the Art Treasures of Peking exhibits to be shown during the Autumn at Burlington House. His own collection is so valuable, that in accepting a hundred thousand pounds for the portion that he is handing over to the nation, he is considered to be making a very generous gift. Yet when he selected these pieces from amongst what was offered to him by agents and dealers the sellers would have been amazed to learn why the selected vases had a touch or perfection or charm that was lacking in their other offers. The Duveen brothers, to whom the Tate Gallery owes so much, had the same unflinching flair.

The value of a thing, of course, often depends on our own necessities. As a rich man once said, "I never knew the value of half a crown until I hadn't got one." In dry parts of the world a bucket of water has its tariff rate which varies with the length of the summer drought, and the owner of a perennial spring can grow rich without effort. There are some who say that that it is the extortion of money for what Nature gives us freely, — the creation of an artificial scarcity, — that is the ultimate crime against humanity that is making all our troubles.

At the other pole of value is the thing that is so cheap that we give no thought to its proper use. It was Robert Blatchford, once a very popular journalist, who used to preach what he called the "Doctrine of Waste." He specially applied it to such articles as matches, in lighting which we took no proper care to avoid extinction by a breath of air. It cost so little to light another. A contrary case was that of a rough pioneer on the prairie who after filling his pipe with tobacco found his match box empty. After expressing a very pessimistic view of the way the world was managed, he suddenly saw a match lying a few feet away on the ground, and was so impressed with so direct an interposition of Providence that he became a changed man. The upshot seems to be that the relation of price to value is distorted by urgent necessity upwards, and superfluity downwards. In that case there would seem to be some theoretical ground for guessing that "the greatest good of the greatest number" would best be secured by providing everybody with a moderate income and the chance of buying what he wants at a moderate price.

We are told that we live in an "era of plenty" which requires a new economic theory. That is certainly true of many commodities and, amongst others, of new schemes of production and distribution. Quite naturally therefore a well reasoned book has just appeared in which the argument is that the Soviets have been not only on the wrong tack, but rushing away in the opposite direction from the true solution; — that in fact what we should aim at is not the destruction of the bourgeoisie, but the creation and protection of a universal bourgeoisie. The ideal is not exactly the same as that of the "Distributionists" who are led by Mr. G. R. Chesterton, but the deliberate regulation of the State in such a way that within a not very wide limit everybody's income will rise and fall with the level of prices, and prices will vary with the intrinsic value of the goods. A somewhat similar scheme was put forward with elaborate detail by Major Douglas twenty years ago. One wonders whether wants can be so easily standardised as statistics seem sometimes to indicate? Is the ideal of a universal regulated respectability really attractive? How would a Lane or a Eumorfopoulos fare? They have their analogues in every walk of life, and even the mere eccentric is also one of God's creatures.

THE BALINESE DANCERS

IT was a rare treat that we had last week in watching the graceful motions of the Royal Balinese Dancers. One's first thought was "now we can see where those ancient statues and carved friezes found their subjects." Not of course only in Bali itself, but in the ancient tradition widespread over all the East, and developed in the course of centuries, probably of thousands of years. For just as the East gives us the oldest continuous civilizations, so is the dance the oldest expression of the emotions and of the religious transports in which bygone men found escape from the monotonous round of daily life. In the oldest carvings that we have, such as the Ajanta Caves, one can see that ancient people felt a delight in the grace of bending the body and the arm and, even the fingers just so; and that our stiff repetitions of the waltz, the one step, the two step, are mere libels on the earliest and most instinctive art.

ADAPTATION

CENSORIOUS critics might condemn the recess of adaptation so clearly noticeable both in music and grouping to suit the untrained taste of the miscellaneous spectators whom this company seeks to attract in its long projected tour. I am inclined to think that the translation into a language of rhythm, and above all a shortening, a rejection of repetitions, and an emphasis on the dramatic substratum of the performance, much cleverness has been shown. For the truth is that we Occidentals have become so accustomed to hustling that we have lost the power of being entertained by any performance that calls for concentration for several hours. And as regards the music, there is a power that almost amounts to hypnotism in a simple theme repeated over and over again for a long time; but the environment of the modern theatre, the "brant" thoughts of an audience growing nervous about the last tram, and beginning to fidget for hat and cloak, is fatal to that particular effect. The only thing to do was to give a suggestion of it, and then make generous concessions to a public that has been trained in taste and melody by Messrs. Wheeler and Woolsey.

PRIMITIVE ACCOMPANIMENTS.

IT is an old saying that "time was made for slaves," — that is, time in the sense of impatience and haste. For the people who went to hear primitive music time did not exist, they were content to feel that they had all the time there was. I have myself heard an orchestra composed of tom-toms and conches, with players relaying each other alternately at intervals of about an hour, keep perfect rhythm for three days and nights. The shock when it stopped was as if someone had hit one on the head and the world had stopped going round. Modern music is an affair of expression, composer and artist combine to work off some impressions and thoughts and aspirations that would otherwise be portentous in their sensitive souls. Primitive music was a matter of impression. The composer can be almost

SOLVING LONDON'S AIR PROBLEMS VISIONARY PLANS FOR CITY AERODROME

SOLUTION LIES IN OTHER DIRECTION

(By WILLIAM COURTENAY)

A 200-mile-an-hour air liner will soon be flying from Liverpool to Croydon Airport in 45 minutes. The same time will be occupied in bringing the passengers from Croydon Airport to Central London.

That is one of the reasons why people are once more discussing the question of an aerodrome in the City or West End. Even the very conservative City of London is now taking an interest in the problem. The City Lands Committee of the Corporation has been considering the matter for some months.

Now they are asking the Court of Common Council to-day for authority to spend £750 or more on professional advice.

City Aerodrome
The particular proposal before the Corporation has been for a concrete or steel "aerodrome" above the Thames at Blackfriars Bridge. They have power, however, to build an airport within or anywhere outside the City itself, and the Thames scheme is only one of several ideas put forward for a central airport.

Some have envisaged the taking over of Hyde Park for the purpose. It would in many ways be an ideal site, but London is never likely, I think, to agree to its being so used.

Then there is Wormwood Scrubs, only four miles from Marble Arch. But the Air Ministry decided years ago that it was too small.

A Visionary Scheme
Most visionary of all is the King's Cross scheme.

Imagine a mighty wheel reared about 120 feet above the ground, with eight gigantic spokes. These spokes would constitute the "runways," so that landings and the take-off could be accomplished whatever quarter the wind might be in.

Each spoke would be about half a mile long and 200ft. wide, and the buildings beneath would be flats and offices earning revenue. There is even a suggestion to move Covent Garden Market to this site, and combine it with a great motor-coach station.

This great plan would clean up the whole neighbourhood between Damage estimated at £100,000 was caused when a fire broke out on the Japanese motor-ship Tateuta Maru.

In an exciting cricket match on the Chinese Recreation Club ground, "Wayfoong" (Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank) lost to "Ewo" (Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co.) by one wicket. J. H. Ralke scored 61 for "Wayfoong," while R. E. Coxon scored 52 out of the "Ewo" total of 183.

"Now, Mr. Perrin," began the Sunday Herald interviewer, "I shall be very glad if you will give me a few particulars."

But at this moment Mr. Perrin was called away. In about ten minutes he returned. "Sorry to keep you waiting," he said, "but business won't wait, you know. Now, what can I tell you?"

"Well," said the interviewer, "as head of an important concern like Thomas Cook and Son, in Hong Kong, our readers would like to know a little about you and your career. I understand you have been a resident of the Colony for about 15 years."

"I don't fancy Hong Kong wants to know anything about my early years," said Mr. Perrin. "Suppose we confine ourselves to my time in the Far East."

"Can't you give me a few items before that?" asked the interviewer.

"All right. You can say I was born in 1893."

"You certainly don't look it; I should have said that 1903 was nearer the mark," said the Sunday Herald representative, hoping to soften him. But Mr. Perrin was direct to Croydon the airport could be reached in 15 minutes.

SOLVING LONDON'S AIR PROBLEMS

Mails, luggage and freight could also contribute revenue towards its upkeep.

Given such a line, Croydon could continue to deal with Continental traffic, for it is large enough for all such requirements and is on the right side of London for the purpose.

North London Airport
For London's air traffic to the North of England, Scotland and Ireland we need another airport on London's northern boundaries.

This will avoid bringing air passengers from the North, across London to Croydon, only to take them 12 miles north again by road.

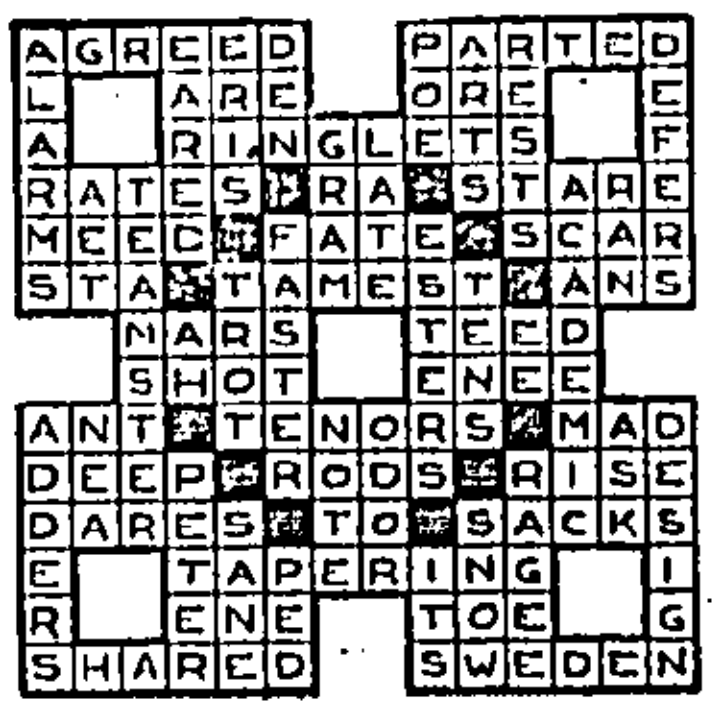

Such an airport should be prospectively between Hendon and Hatfield and should be built by the Air Ministry. A connection with the Edgware tube would bring this also within 15 minutes of central London.

Objection is certain to be made that a Croydon tube would be very costly. But so will some of the other schemes I have mentioned, and mine, unlike the others, would keep air traffic where it really belongs—away from the densely crowded areas of a city.

Certain it is that the absurdity of a road journey from London to Croydon taking as long as an air journey from Croydon to Liverpool cannot endure indefinitely.

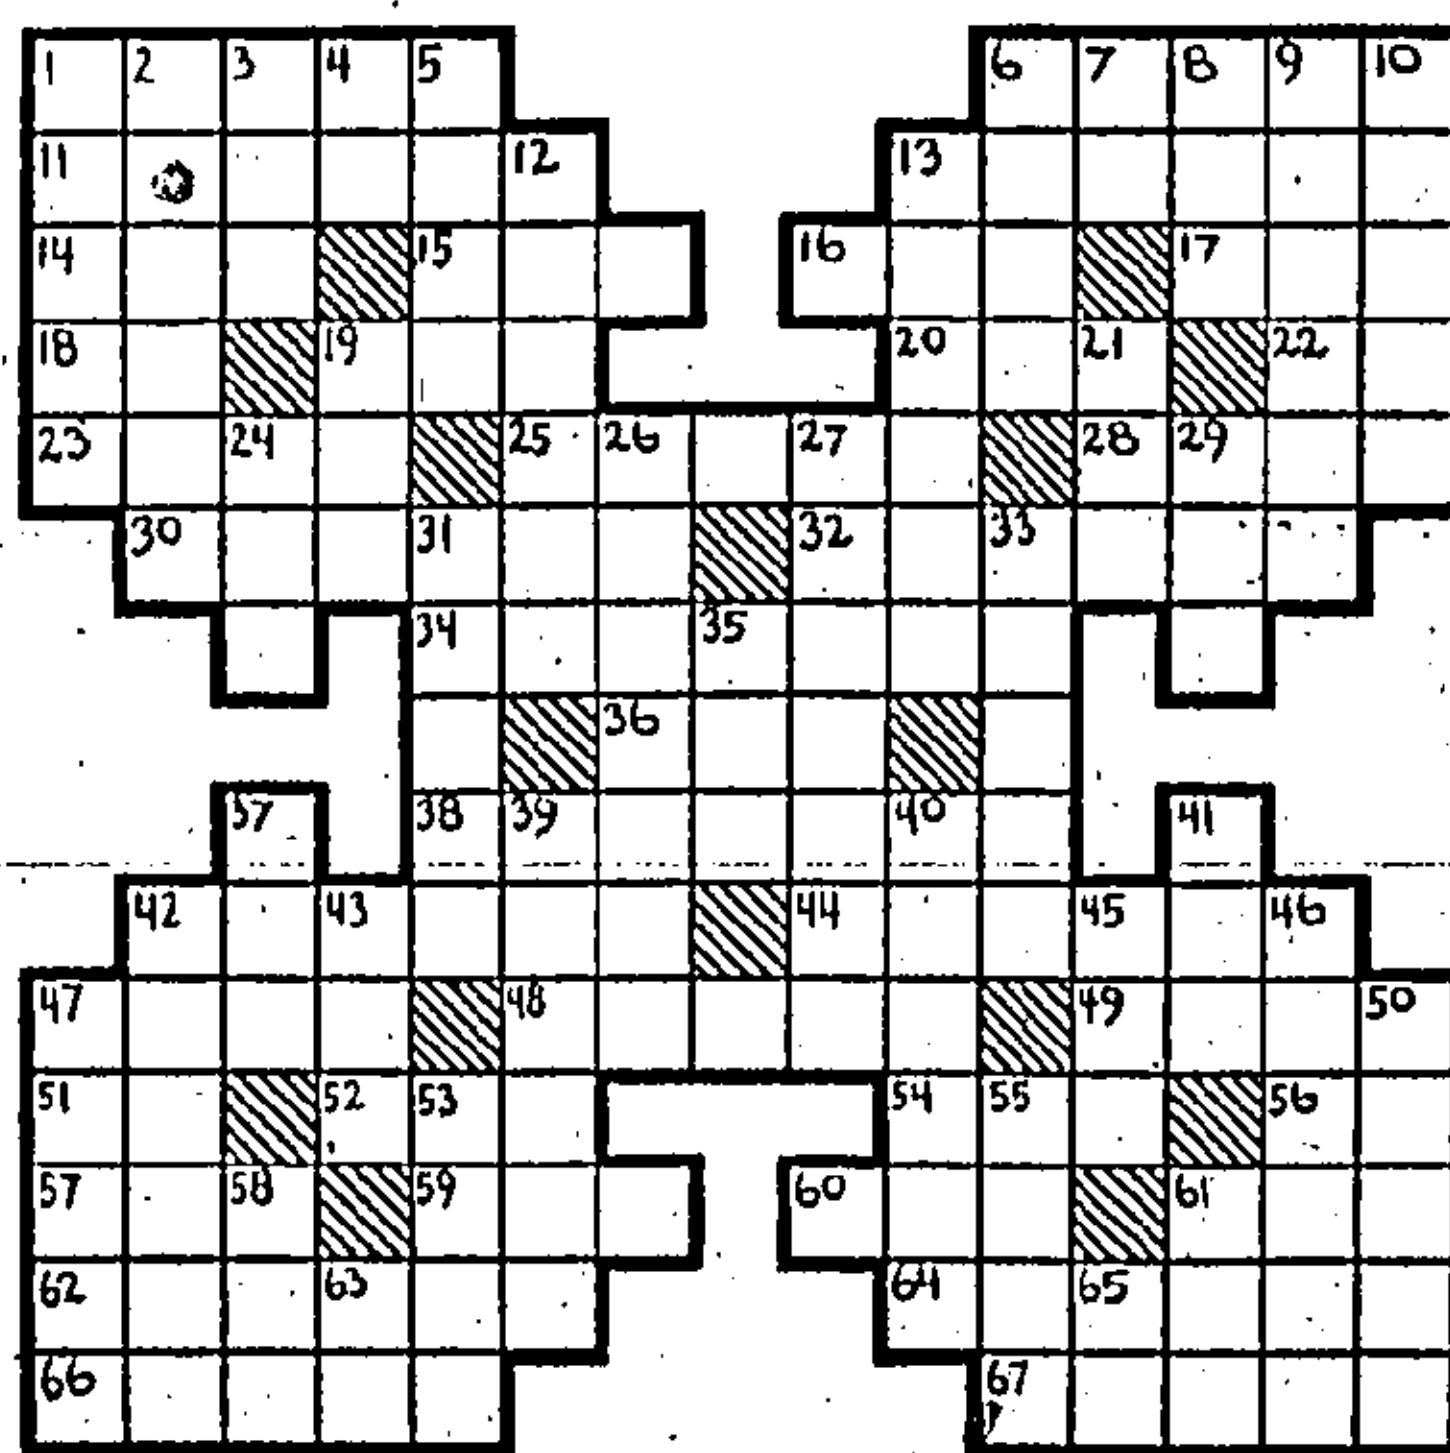

Let the Air Ministry, the General Post Office and Lord Ashfield gather in conference and face up to the problem.

ILFORD LIMITED

Branch Office Opened
In Colony

MR. A. P. DOWNIE MANAGER

MESSRS. Ilford Limited, the largest British manufacturers of sensitized photographic materials, have recently opened a Branch Office in Hong Kong on the first floor of the Chung Tin Building, at the corner of Des Voeux Road Central and Ice House Street.

The Manager of the Hong Kong Branch is Mr. A. P. Downie, who will be in charge of the entire South

Mr. A. P. DOWNIE

China district. Mr. Downie was for many years in the Head Office of Messrs. Ilford Limited, in Ilford, London, and was appointed Assistant Branch Manager for Bombay, a couple of years ago, later being transferred to Calcutta in the same capacity, and recently being promoted to Branch Manager in Hong Kong.

Ilford Limited has grown from a small beginning, over half a century ago in Ilford, to a great world-wide organisation with branch offices throughout the world, their materials having been distributed in the Far East for over 30 years. The Head Office for the Far East is situated in Shanghai. Mr. I. J. Villington Scott being the General Manager for the Far East. Mr. Scott came to Hong Kong a few weeks ago to welcome Mr. Downie, and he is leaving the Colony next Tuesday on a business visit to the Dutch East Indies and Malaya, before returning to Shanghai.

Mr. I. J. VILLINGTON SCOTT

EVEREST EXPEDITION ECHO
One of the most interesting achievements of Messrs. Ilford Limited, during the past three years, has been the development, on a commercial basis, of Infra-Red photography. It was largely due to the co-operation of this Company with the Mount Everest Expedition that the excellent photographic records of this remarkable flight were obtained.

When interviewed, Mr. Downie expressed his pleasure upon his transfer to Hong Kong and said that he looks forward to his service in the Colony and in South China with great hopes for the enlargement of the firm's business in this field. He stated that he makes a hobby of photography and that he plans to co-operate with the local photographic associations.

AUGUSTA DUE NEXT WEEK

The U.S.S. Augusta, flying the flag of the Commander-in-Chief of the United States Asiatic Fleet, is due to arrive in Hong Kong next Saturday for a stay of about 10 days.

SOLDIER OF BRITAIN UNPLACED

COSSACK'S BEAUTY PAYS $238 DIVIDEND

BRILLIANT RIDING BY MR. LIANG

ABLE Amazon's track record under Mr. Butler's guidance and Mr. Liang's terrific finish on Cossack's Beauty in The Hong Kong Handicap in which Soldier of Britain, a red hot favourite, ran unplaced, were the main features of the First Extra Race Meeting at the Valley yesterday.

The Meeting was also noteworthy for the welcome return of Mr. Gilbert Harriman, following his operation, and Mr. Gus da Roza, who is now stationed in Canton.

Mr. Leo Frost did not have matters all his own way yesterday, having to share the riding honours with Mr. Butler, who also had two wins and two seconds. Mr. Li Tse-fong, who recently acquired Mr. Ho Kom-tong's stable, was the leading owner with two wins and a third. The highest dividend paid was $238.90, on Cossack's Beauty, while the double combination of Oak Bay and Nebular Star paid $33.60.

A smallish crowd was present, which Mr. F. Marshall considered the best 1935 sub. pay $33.70 for his second place. He would probably have secured the premier position had not Invermark the skilful hands of Mr. H. C. Pih, the Northern rider, who made a hot favourite with Philanderer (Mr. Deltz) second and Chesterfield (Mr. Frost) third favourites.

The three fancied ponies drew good positions, but Cavalcade was not on his toes when the gate went up, and Sarabande shot into the lead, a position he held until the corner into the home straight when Philanderer came through on the rails. Cavalcade was then sent into the lead, but he was lucky to stave off Philanderer's comeback effort over the last 50 yards. From the Press box Mr. Hosie's entry looked as if he should have at least dead-heated instead of being beaten by a short head. Young Chap (Mr. P. Botelho) was third.

Upset Among Novices

The first upset of the afternoon was provided in the "Lotters" Stakes for Novice riders when Mr. Tang Man Wa brought in the third favourite, Gold Coin, to pay a $66 dividend. Ythan, second favourite, shot away to a good start and looked as if he had the race in his pocket at the Rock, where Diogenes (Mr. Poy) was in the lead. Gold Coin, however, challenged after the Rock, while Ythan unaccountably faltered. Coming into the straight Gold Coin challenged again over, but Ythan looked again only to fall by a neck. Soldier of Victory was third, and Diogenes and Mersey (Mr. Pearce) were fourth.

Dunbar Favourite Wins

Oak Bay (Mr. Frost) was made a hot favourite for the "All Out" Stakes and fully justified the confidence placed in him by winning from Hetman (Mr. Butler) by three lengths. Great Hall (Mr. Gus da Roza) finished a poor third in the field of five starters.

Oak Bay and Hetman left the gate together, but the Dunbar grey jumped into the lead at the football stands, increased it in the back straight, and drew steadily away from his Dynasty rival until approaching the corner into the home straight. Hetman then came back strongly and cropt up on Oak Bay with every step in the home straight, but the arrears lost earlier in the race proved too great.

Got That Wins At Last

Mr. Harold Seth secured his long expected win when Mr. Deltz rode Got That to a two lengths win over Goldsmith (Mr. Frost) in the Randwick Plate.

Getting away to a perfect start, Got That led all the way round, though he was hard pressed to stave off both Goldsmith and Snowy River in the home straight. He responded well, however, and finished full of running. Had Goldsmith got away quicker from the gate the race would have been considerably more interesting. Snowy River was a poor third in a fast run race—it was only two-fifths of a second outside the track record. The Maori was fourth and Racing Lass fifth in the field of five starters.

Before the race Mr. Deltz was unseated at the gate, but he showed no signs of any injury during his well-judged race.

Wadebridge Blocked

The Tytam Handicap "A" Division saw the favourite, Gold Picker (Mr. Tao), run into fifth place in a big field, and Mrs. Pearce's Wadebridge blocked when he came through with a big run. Bag Tor was again well ridden by Mr. "Duffy" Davis and secured second place, three lengths ahead of Racing Heart (Mr. Deltz).

Setting a first half mile of 0.53.2 Mr. Benny Proulx made a gallant effort to bring Southern Cross home first, but was completely outclassed in the home stretch and could do no better than secure fourth place, ahead of Saucy Face (Mr. Pih).

YARDLEY is a luxury manufacturer, and everyone knows how these last few years have altered the complexion of business for luxury manufacturers. The flush of healthy sales paled. Blotches and spots, indicating constitutional weakness, appeared. Some hastened to lower prices and cut their losses. Some established secondary, inferior lines. Others quietly closed up shop.

Yardley did none of these. Instead, they wisely reasoned that even when lean years stalk like hungry wolves, and business men grow jittery, a woman will find a way to guard her beauty.

"I made extensive trial of Kalzana in a case of Neuroses. I have been surprised at the great value of Kalzana in toning up the nervous system."
—B.A., L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S.

Irritability

Very often that irritable feeling is due to nothing else but a lack of certain minerals in the body. Start taking Kalzana, the mineral food, for a time. In the majority of instances this results in a remarkable improvement in health, especially in cases of Nervous Irritability, Nerve Pains and Neuralgia.

Prof. C. A. Ronzevalle, M.A. (London), writes about his experience with Kalzana:

"I was just recovering from a nervous breakdown, when 'Kalzana' was brought to my notice. I started taking Kalzana without delay and the results so far have been surprising: the digestive organs are able to cope successfully with any kind of food, the neuralgic pains in the face have disappeared and there is a general sense of well-being and fitness which I have not known for some time past."

Kalzana contains the vital minerals that build power of resistance in the body and tone-up the function of all the organs. Kalzana is not a drug, but a mineral food which must do you good. Start your course to-day and you will soon enjoy sound health again.

British Empire And China Trade Fair What It Stands For

THE elevation of the British Empire and China Trade Fair building published to-day enables the public to visualise something of the Trade Fair, to be held here next December, which is going to mean so much to the Colony.

Very modern in its appearance, the main frontage extends along Nathan Road—from Middle Road to Salisbury Road, a distance of approximately 225 ft.

This, as will be seen, contains two storeys. The ground floor with the main entrance hall in the centre is for the use of the public; on the left of this is the Restaurant, and on the right is the Ball room, measuring 62ft by 50 ft.

This Ball room is also intended for the purpose of showing travel and trade films, and in it will be given lectures, which are a feature of the Trade Fair.

On the First floor is the Welcome Club, extending throughout the whole frontage. This Club, is open to Exhibitors and Officials of the Trade Fair and their guests, and is intended to be used for both business and pleasure.

Lounge and Reading Room
The Northern half of the Club is given up to a Restaurant and Tea room; the other half contains a Typist's room for the use of members, a Waiting room and Conference rooms where Exhibitors may meet groups or individuals to discuss questions of business development. At the end of this floor, and facing Nathan and Salisbury Roads is the Lounge and reading room, where newspapers, periodicals and business literature from all parts of the Empire will be available for members.

To appreciate the real value of this Welcome Club, one must realise main products, and those who are interested in any particular product can compare that of one country with another producing the same article.

Emphasis needs to be laid on the fact that China is being invited to exhibit as well as to inspect exhibits of different parts of the Empire.

To-day it should be a truism even to the man in the street, that no country can develop a one-way trade. An important to China as to any part of the Empire is the development of her exports.

The fact that it is her heavy adverse balance of trade which makes it so difficult to develop the Empire's exports to China, only makes it more imperative that the opportunity provided at this Trade Fair should be taken full advantage of by Chinese and British merchants to develop two-way trade.

In dealing with this question, which concerns all parts of the British Empire equally with China, the value of the Welcome Club is again apparent.

Greatest Trading People

It is the hope of the organisers that each part of the Empire will send Exhibits to this Trade Fair, which will worthily uphold their country's reputation in the eyes of the large number of business men who may be expected in Hongkong next December. Equally important is it that men in authority from the various Dominions and Colonies should be deputed to come to Hongkong with power to discuss with each other, and with Chinese of equal authority, all the aspects of the many questions that hinder freer development of trade to-day between the two oldest, and still the greatest trading people in the world—the Chinese and the British.

firm. "No," he said, "I think we'll leave it at that."

"What about the War?" he was asked.
"Oh, the usual thing. I joined up in 1914 with a Scottish regiment, but, as there seemed little chance of going overseas for some months, I effected a transfer to the Field Artillery and saw service in France from 1915 to 1917. Was then transferred to India and served on the Afghan frontier till 1919. Then I was returned safe and sound to England and was demobilised in 1920, when I joined my present firm and was sent out East—Manila in 1921 and Hong Kong ever since. I became Manager in March 1924."

And that was all the interviewer could glean from the reluctant Mr. Perrin, except an admission that he was a member of the Hong Kong Club, the Jockey Club (resigned), the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club ("one of its worst players"), the Cricket Club and the U.S.R.C.

Asked as to his recreations, hobbies, etcetera, Mr. Perrin replied that his principal hobby was his work, followed, at a considerable distance, by golf.

A plan of the building which will house the British Empire and China Trade Fair, to be held from December 2 to December 28 this year, on the plot of ground adjoining the Peninsula Hotel.

exactly what the British Empire and China Trade Fair is planning to do.

Its primary purpose is to bring together Chinese business men and business men of the British Empire. In this manner each may learn something of the developments taking place to-day in the other parts of the territory covered by this Trade Fair: each may learn how the people are tackling the very difficult problems that daily arise in the present disjunct condition of the world: each may, through this meeting on common ground, discuss their problems with those in similar difficulty in their territory. It cannot be supposed that wide-awake business men from the different parts of the British Empire meeting each other as well as the Chinese business men—numbering amongst them some of the keenest and astutest in the world—will not see open before them new avenues of trade which only the lack of this common meeting ground, had made apparent before.

Welcome Club's Significance
Therefore it is "apparent" that while the Exhibits occupy the most conspicuous part of this Trade Fair, it is the meetings in the Welcome Club which are going to provide the ways and means of starting the ball of trade moving along fresh avenues not previously visualised.

Turning now to the Exhibition grounds, it appears there are approximately 120 stalls, varying in size from 120 sq. ft. up to 280 sq. ft.

It is intended to group each part of the British Empire Exhibits and those of China in their own sections. It is anticipated that the Government of each country will occupy the centre stand of their section, converting it into a Court, and round this will be grouped the stands of individual exhibitors from that particular country.

In this manner it will be easy to get a quick view of each country's

FUSILIERS LOSE SEVENS FINAL

Fusiliers "B"—Fus. Phillips, L/C Jones (47), L/C. Kohnaw, Fus. Small, Fus. Thomas, Fus. Watkins, L/C. Ilooluhian (Capt.).

Fusiliers "A" Extended

A very closely contested encounter was witnessed when the Fusilier "A" team clashed with the Royal Engineers, and emerged winners by two tries (6 points) to nil, thanks to the splendid efforts of Davis and Floyd.

Powell, at full-back, was the pick of the R.E. side and was often through on his own only to lack support.

Floyd opened the scoring for the Fusilier, but Morgan failed to add the points.

In the second half the Fusiliers enjoyed more of the play and scored again through Davis, who brilliantly gathered a wild pass by Lewin to score in a favourable position. Morgan hit the upright with his kick.

Bank Badly Pressed

The Royal Artillery almost caused an upset in the Second Round when they outplayed the Bank and were very unlucky to lose during extra time.

The Bank won by three tries (9 points) to two tries (6 points), and must thank Robertson and Riggs for their victory, for it was the former's defence and the latter's running which proved the turning point in the clash.

The Bank opened the scoring through Robertson, who took a neat reverse pass from Riggs to score in a favourable position. He, however, failed to add the points from the goal-kick.

Ives' Worthy Effort

Just before the interval the Gunners rushed the Bank off their feet, and equalised through Ives, who followed up a punt forward near the touchline to break through and score near the corner flag. Metcalfe failed with the kick.

In the second half BarncloUGH dived over from a five yard scrum to give the Gunners the lead. Metcalfe again failing with his kick with only a minute to go Riggs took the ball at his feet to score near the corner flag.

A breakaway by the Bank forwards during the extra time saw Bradford sling out a pass to Riggs who went over for the winning try. Artillery:—Bdr. Ives, L/Bdr. Hutchison, Lt. N. W. Metcalfe (Capt.), Gnr. BarncloUGH, Gnr. Wright, Bdr. Hall, Gnr. Jolly.

Wayfong—W. H. B. Riggs, L. G. Robertson (Capt.), M. W. Turner, G. A. Stewart, D. A. Cumming, I. H. Bradford, B. D. G. Barlow.

Club Win After Lapse

After being led at the interval by a try, the Club beat the Royal Army Medical Corps in their semi-final round encounter by a goal and two tries (11 points) to a try (3 points).

The Medicals started off very promisingly and inside the first two minutes had opened their account through Leigh, who crossed the Club line following a five yard scrum. Stidston failed to convert the effort.

The Club drew level in the second half through Walkden, who snapped up a pass from a five yard scrum to score. Peers failed to add the points.

Munro then took a pass from Bonnar to score between the posts for Peers to add the extra points.

Just before the end Mecke scored wide of the posts, and Peers failed to convert.

R.A.M.C.—T. Smart, R. L. Sharman, B. E. Stidston, Lt. Leigh, F. Lloyd, Capt. F. P. A. Anderson (Capt.), A. E. Cragg.

Holders Eliminated

The Fusilier "A" team caused a sensation in their semi-final round encounter with the Hong Kong Bank, the holders, whom they defeated in a very close game by a goal (5 points) to a try (3 points).

The soldiers opened their scoring midway through the first half when Floyd gathered from Morgan and dashed away followed closely by Davies. Riggs was gaining rapidly on Floyd when the latter sent out a magnificent reverse pass for Davies to gather and score. Morgan added the points.

In the second half the Fusiliers enjoyed more of the play, but could not break through, the tackling of the Bank backs being deadly.

Eventually Riggs took a neat pass from Turner to outpace the opposi-

DROP POINTS BY ODD GOAL

Third Chance Missed

After a clever bout of passing between Dolgado, Gomes, and Alves, the winger centred to Dolgado, and again the inside-right wasted the chance, this time shooting outside. At the other end, Tam shot wildly over after receiving a good pass by Wong.

With Ip Pak-wah off the field with a knee injury, the Chinese forwards could not get going, and were seldom really dangerous at this stage.

Following determined pressure by the Recorio, B. Gosano sent in a splendid drive which hit the bar with Tang well beaten, but a moment later the same player worked through on the right, and flashed over a hard centre which Tang caught on the goal-line, only to fall and have the ball kicked out of his hand into the net by Dolgado. This success was fully deserved by the Recorio, who should have been three goals to the good instead of the one.

Chinese Equalize

After a brief spell of mid-field play, South China put more life into their efforts, and a centre by Wong was quickly intercepted by Fung, who darted between Bowen and Gosano to crash the ball past Marques from point-blank range.

Just before the interval Marques brought off a brilliant save from a drive by Fung, who was giving Dolgado and Bowen a busy time at this stage.

The second half opened with 10 minutes pressure by Recorio, but South China, settling down rapidly, set up a retaliatory attack, which lasted for the greater part of the remainder of the game.

The winning goal came after a series of moves in the Recorio goal-mouth, following a free-kick taken just outside the area by Leung Wing-chui. Wong secured and sent over a centre which A. V. Gosano headed out to Fung and the centre-forward's shot rather luckily glanced in off the upright.

Best Movement Of Game

Little football was shown in this half, both sides being more intent on displaying temper than constructive movements. The Portuguese ones set up a really clever movement, started by Bowen, and the ball travelled nearly the whole length of the field, passing rapidly from man to man, but Alves, entrusted with the final shot, sent weakly behind, spoiling the best move of the game. Towards the end, A. V. Gosano went up to centre-forward in a last effort to turn the tide, but South China had now a firm grip on the game, and the final whistle came with South China just contenting themselves to keep the ball up the field.

The game was a big disappointment to the majority of the onlookers, who expected to see far better, and cleaner, football than that displayed. The result was, I think, a fair reflex of the exchanges, but had Recorio utilised those three first-half opportunities, the second-half might have swung right in their favour.

Recorio:—E. Marques; A. V. Gosano, Bowen; Silva-Netto, Boltrao, V. Marques; D'Almeida, Dolgado, B. Gosano, Gomes and Alves.

S. China:—Tang Yat-ming; Li Tin-sang, Lau Mau; Leung In-chang, Leung Wing-chui, Lau Hing-choi, Tso Kwai-sing, Tam Kong-pak, Fung King-cheong, Ip Pak-wah and Wong Meek-shun.

EAST LANCES BEAT GUNNERS

Walkden Occupies Spotlight

The East Lances secured a fairly comfortable win when they defeated the Artillery second eleven by four goals to nil at the Valley yesterday.

The Lances were the first to attack, and McKrill, the Artillery 'keeper' was called upon to deal with good efforts by Walkden and Riddings. Eventually the East Lances went ahead through WALKDEN, who took a shot through a pass from Johnson to beat McKrill with an unstoppable drive.

The East Lances increased their lead rather luckily, when Evans sent in a low centre which CARTER deflected into his own goal.

The second half commenced with a determined attack by the East Lances, and WALKDEN soon placed the East Lances further ahead, notting from close quarters. The fourth and final goal came from WALKDEN, from a centre by Evans.

GOVERNOR'S CUP FOOTBALL

Exciting Clash To-day At Caroline Hill

FEDERATION SHOULD BEAT ASSOCIATION

Judging from the present composition of the two teams, the Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation stand an excellent chance of securing their first win in the Governor's Cup soccer competition when they meet the Hong Kong Football Association this afternoon at Caroline Hill, commencing at 4 p.m.

The Association team has been considerably weakened by the withdrawal of Rodger, in goal, and of Howe, from the centre-forward position.

In order not to weaken the defence by removing A. V. Gosano to the vacancy at centre-forward, the selectors have seen fit to move B. Gosano from the right-wing to the leader's berth and to bring T. Pile in on the right wing.

B. Gosano is an excellent leader, while Pile is an Interport winger and fully conversant with Chinese defensive tactics.

On recent form, and with the inclusion of "Darkie" Chan and Tui Ah-fai, of the Athletic, the Federation are expected to win.

The teams are:—C.A.A.F.—Wong Wing (S.C.A.A.), Lee Tin-sang (S.C.A.A.) and Mak Sui-hon (C.A.A.); Leung Wing-chui (S.C.A.A.), Tui Ah-fai (C.A.A.) and Darkie Chan (Athletic); Tso Kwai-sing (S.C.A.A.), Tam Kong-pak (S.C.A.A.), Fung King-cheong (S.C.A.A.), Ip Pak-wah (S.C.A.A.) and H.K.F.A.—Coker (Navy); Swain (East Lances) and C. Pile (Police); Keneghan (Fusiliers), McGuire (Navy) and Parker (Police); B. Gosano (Recorio), Higgins (Lincolns), A. V. Gosano (Recorio) Ridley (Lincolns) and Bickford (Club).

Sergt. Isley will referee and will be assisted on the line by P. Archer and H. H. Heath.

SAPPERS SURPRISE NAVY JUNIORS

Engineers Good Value For Two Points

The Royal Engineers surprised the Navy at Causeway Bay yesterday when they won by 2 goals to 1 in their Second Division encounter. The Sappers secured an early lead when Callard, their outside right, rushed through the Navy defence to net from 'close quarters'.

The Sappers' second goal, which came just before the interval, was the result of a brilliant header by Callard.

The main feature of the second-half was the good defence of the Engineers. Their fine work kept the Navy at bay until late in the match, but eventually Hinder, the Navy outside-left, scored with a fast shot.

SIX FOR DUNCAN

Club Score Eleven Against Kowloon

The Club juniors experienced a very easy win yesterday when they routed their Kowloon rivals by eleven clear goals at the Valley. Unfortunately for Kowloon, three of their players failed to put in an appearance, but the remaining eight very sportingly consented to play, regardless of the handicap.

Duncan (6) Williams, Purvis (2), and Fisher (2) scored for the Club, who led 6-0 at the interval.

Club:—Strilling, Ralston, Dinno, Hopkins, Nicholls, Bitter, Fowler, Fisher, Duncan, Williams and Purvis. Kowloon:—Hickman, Cutter, Fuxman, Winch, Boyd, Tillery, Thompson and Cairns.

Continuing to hold the upper hand, the Lincolns went further ahead, Higgins heading into the net from a well-timed pass by Baldry.

The Artillery fell to pieces during the second half, and, although Smith made valiant efforts to get his forwards working, the Lincoln defence was too sound. The Lincolns' last goal was scored by McGuinness, from a fine centre by English.

Lincolns:—Reed, Dobbs, Edmundson, Deeming, Thompson, Robson, English, McGuinness, Higgins, Ridley and Baldry.

Artillery:—Durham; Worthington, Clancy, Hunt, Morton, Harris, Smith, Edmundson, Brown, Knight and Taylor.

LOCAL NEWS BREVITIES

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY

Final Performance Of "Hiawatha"

HIGH PRAISE FOR CHORUS

The only fault that could be found in the Philharmonic Society's Concerts last Thursday and last night was that they were lacking in inspiration.

On Thursday H. E. the Governor and Lady Peel attended and last night Major General O. C. Borrett and Mrs. Borrett were present.

Thursday's performance was somewhat marred by the stolid fortissimo tone which pervaded the whole. For instance one wondered whether anyone realised that Part II—The Death of Minchewan was meant to be said. The poignant phrase "Wahamin" was sung almost boisterously. Certainly there was an improvement last evening; but even then the choir never sang below a mezzo forte the whole way through.

Orchestra Pleases

The orchestra worked nobly from beginning to end. Mr. Conrado de la Cruz again led, assisted by some excellent colleagues. Unfortunately from its position on the floor of the hall there was a tendency for the orchestra to dominate the singers.

The tempo was slow throughout and it is a pity the music was not allowed to sing itself. It seemed held back all the time.

Mrs. Bowes-Smith, the soprano, is well known to Philharmonic audiences. Her voice, rather lacking in legato, failed to portray adequately the tense emotion of the sad death scene; but she was much happier in the solo "Spring Had Come" in Part III, which was beautifully sung.

Mr. J. A. Kennedy, the tenor, called upon at short notice, did splendidly. His solo "Onaway, Awake, Beloved" was delightful, and he was never tempted to exceed his powers.

Praise For Chorus

Mr. W. H. Billing gave a straightforward rendering and sang well. The chorus deserve a special word of praise. They showed evidence of having worked very hard and gave a most creditable performance.

Mr. A. B. Yule conducted and kept his forces well in hand. He is to be congratulated upon two good concerts.

Aya Singh, the opposing centre-forward, played an outstanding game and was superior to Gurbachan Singh, the Colony leader, who has lost his form during these last few weeks.

Sarwan Singh, the losers' custodian, was prominent throughout and saved innumerable shots, while Khuda Bux and Chowdhury, the probable right-wing combine, were very fast and easily outshone their opposing numbers. Kartar Singh and Lal Singh, the Colony and left-wing partnership, have never been seen to better advantage.

India meet Ireland in the First Round of the International hockey tournament on March 21.

and you have to watch it pretty closely. 'It' just comes billowing along when you least expect it. I make plans and calculations in the evening—it's rather fascinating."

He smiled reminiscently and clasped his lean hands behind his head.

"I used to take the evening off. I remember trying to teach the head ganger to play the flute, but his lips were too thick or something. Then I had an idea of making a tennis court. 'It' makes a good court, but in the dry season you could fall down the cracks. No, 'It' takes all one's time to fight properly."

"I think I've got the hang of it now," Grieve told him. "Why don't you go and pack and get out of here?"

Strickland looked positively startled.

"Ah, of course," he said, and, going into his bedroom, drew out a battered tin trunk.

It remained against the wall.

open, and with three shirts in it for two days. At the end of that time Grieve began to lose patience. The work was going steadily, but Strickland was perpetually hovering about making suggestions, and sometimes even giving orders. This was a trifle too much for Grieve.

"Look here," he said, turning on him suddenly. "You're on leave. I'm working this thing now. Why don't you get out?"

A moment later he was sorry he had said it. Strickland gaped at him like a whipped schoolboy, then turned and walked slowly to the bungalow with bent shoulders.

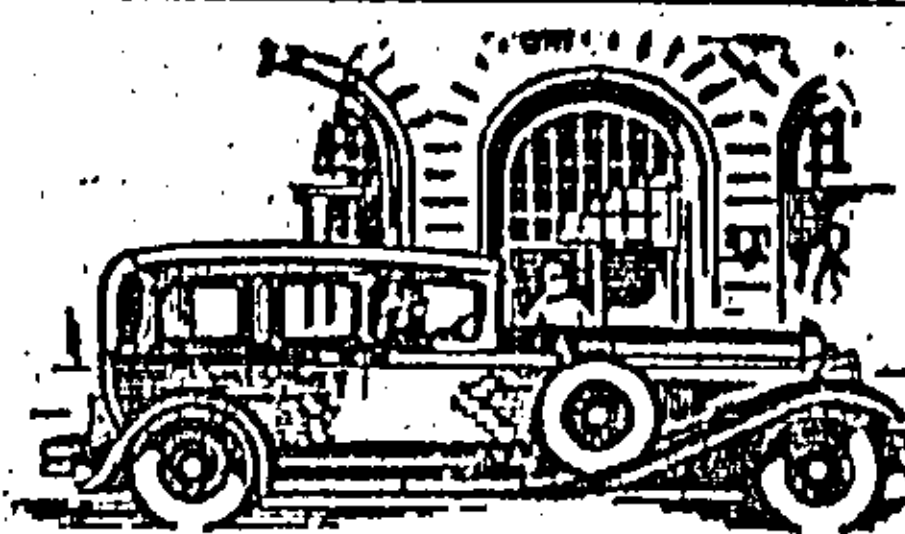

That night the battered tin trunk held three more shirts, a dinner-jacket, and a pair of muddy boots. But the next morning, early, Grieve came upon him unawares. He was standing motionless on the extreme edge of the drained land, looking north-east. The sun was rising, and dyed the swamp a silmy red.

Strickland's lips were moving, and Grieve caught a faint sucking sound, echoed, it seemed, by the mud.

He stole back to the bungalow with a fixed determination that Strickland should go—if it meant force. But there was no need. About one o'clock the next morning Grieve woke with a start. The usual crackling noises were going on about the bungalow, and he buried his head in the single sheet and tried to sleep, but it was impossible. Then he remembered that Strickland snored abominably, and there was no snore—only the cracklings and suckings. He lifted the mosquito-net and slid to the floor. Out in the moonlight the same grey wall of mist stood on the marshes, and something slithered and plopped. He crossed the passage and peered into Strickland's room; then went over to the bed. It had not been slept in.

Still in his pyjamas, Grieve descended the verandah steps and looked about him. He and Strickland were the only beings in Koba who wore boots, and Strickland was slightly splay-footed. Grieve followed up the fresh track that led

MOTURING NOTES - -

DAINGEROUS CROSSINGS

Of the 237,000 rail-highway grade crossings in the United States, only 13 per cent. are protected with signals, gates or watchmen.

LONDON-EXETER TRIAL

Five Ford V-8's Triumph Over Difficult Course

Those interested in motor car trials in England have undoubtedly followed the results of the recent London-Exeter Trial.

Of 276 starters, only 13 gained premier awards. Five of the 13 were Ford V-8's. Twenty-one V-8 Fords were entered and five received premier places, 14 other securing silver medals.

The Team Award went to the drivers of three V-8 Fords, and the Silence Award for the quietest car to author Ford V-8 driver.

The fact that out of so many contestants, only 13 received premier awards shows that the course was a difficult one.

INEFFICIENT CAR BATTERIES

Unable To Cope With Extra Duties

Many complaints are made against the modern battery. Owners write of finding the battery without a kick in it after leaving the car for an hour or two with the side-lamps on, and every cold snap brings more cases of cars that cannot be started without physical labour. In some of these cases the cars are not only relatively new but are fitted with "constant voltage" dynamos, the special function of which is to keep the battery well charged. In such cases the battery is clearly to blame, unless it has been badly neglected.

Every year more work is thrown on the battery with the steady increase of electrical accessories. On some cars 11 lamps as well as horn, starter, direction indicators and motor to drive dual screen wipers are fitted. But standard batteries have not been enlarged to cope with these extra duties. They seem barely to have a full year's active life in them.

AMERICA FAVOURS SIX-SEATERS

Three-In-Front Idea Is Approved

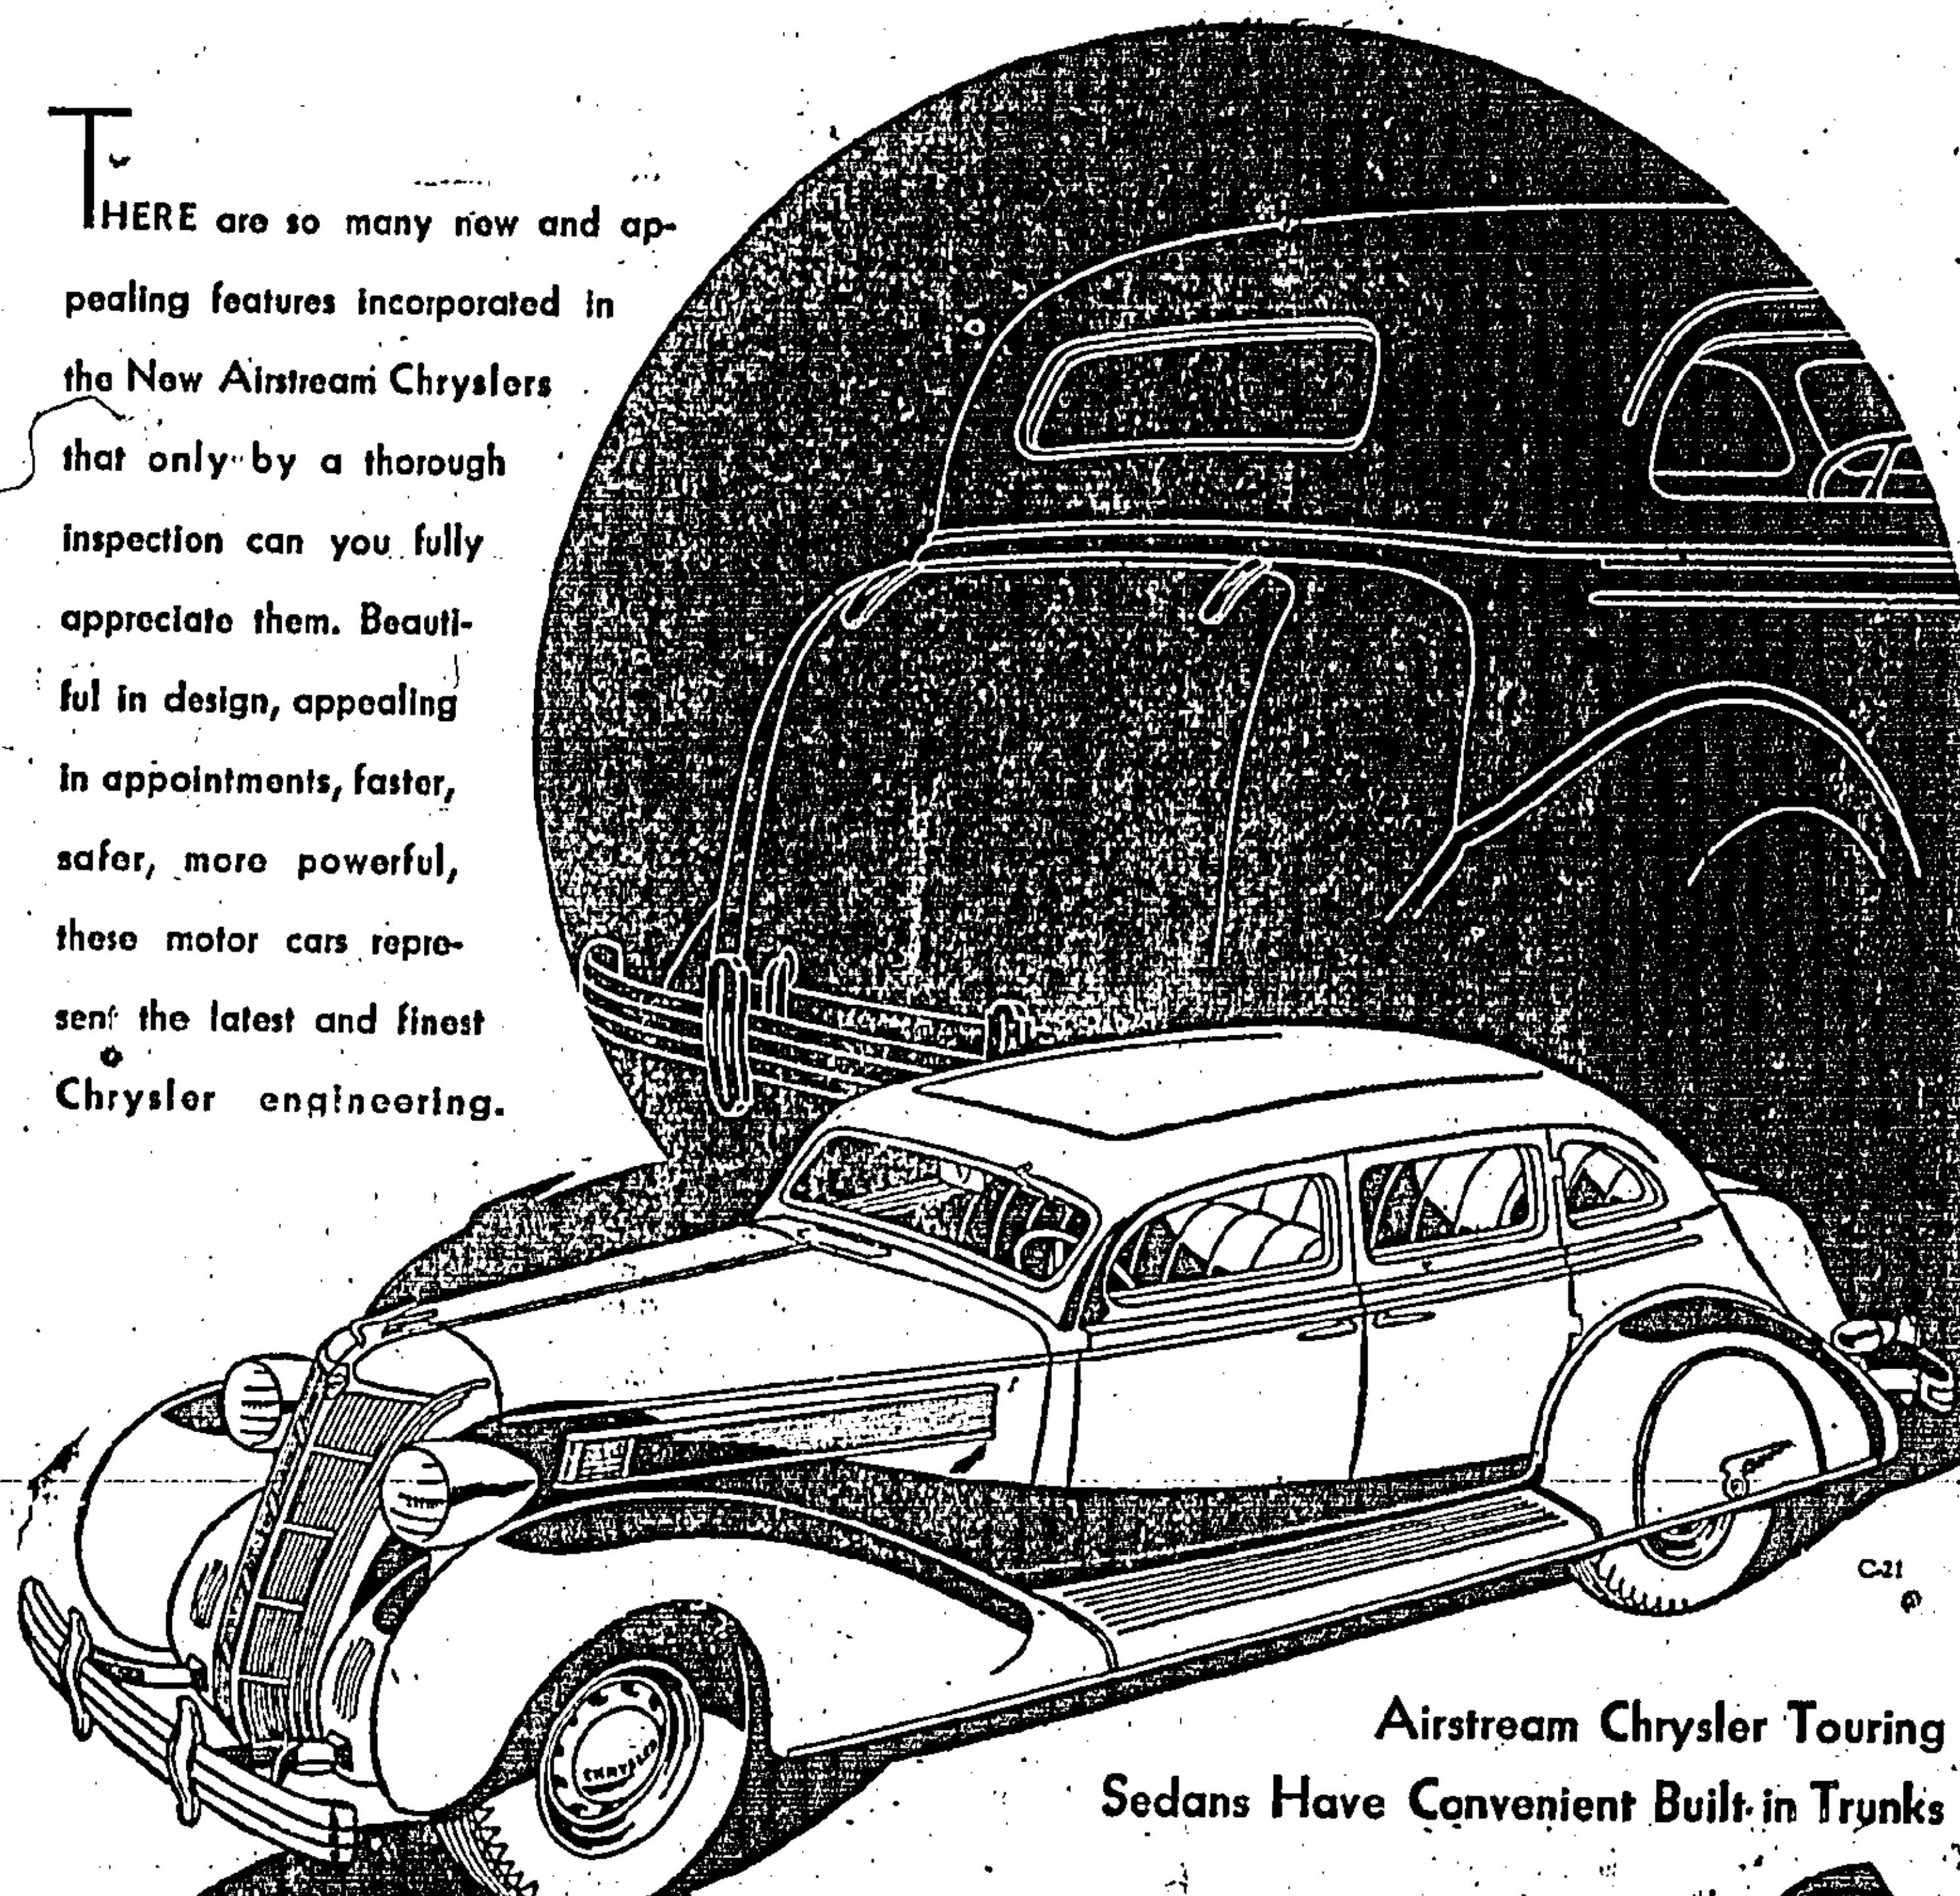

The average American saloon car this year will seat six, three in front and three in the rear. Advance details are reaching here of the new models to be produced at the New York Show and from these it is gathered that the most important development is the widespread adoption of the three-in-front idea.

Full streamlining of the Chrysler type seems to have gained no new adherents, but the voluptuous curves, deeply balanced mudguards and sweeping tails with large luggage boots embedded in or protruding from them are practically universal, and so is that other child of the American type of streamlining, the wide front seat.

AMERICA'S SHARE OF MOTORS

The United States has only 7 per cent. of the world's population, but 70 per cent. of all motor vehicles.

THERE are so many new and appealing features incorporated in the New Airstream Chryslers that only by a thorough inspection can you fully appreciate them. Beautiful in design, appealing in appointments, faster, safer, more powerful, these motor cars represent the latest and finest Chrysler engineering.
